Victoria's Secret Fashion Show 2018 (Wikipedia, 2018)

However, since 2016, consumers have continued to move toward more comfortable and athleisure underwear and other brand competitors have refined their underwear size ranges. With the rise of women's power under the #MeToo campaign and the scandal at the top of Victoria's Secret, the company has fallen behind in its quest for "sexiness" that began with its inception. (Lucy Martin, 2020) In 2019, the COVID-19 pandemic led to the closure of a large number of offline stores, and Victoria's Secret began to decline. 2022 Victoria Secret's full-year revenue fell by 6% to $6.34 billion (£5.32 billion). (Drapers, 2023)

THE LIFECYCLE OF VICTORIA'S SECRET

In 1977, Roy Raymond founded Victoria's Secret, with the first store opening in Palo Alto, California at the Stanford Shopping Center.

By 1982, Victoria's Secret had grown to five stores, a 40-page catalog and annual revenues of $6 million, but the company was on the verge of bankruptcy.

That same year, Les Wexner, the "Warren Buffet of lingerie," bought Victoria's Secret for $1 million and quickly shifted the brand to target female customers.

By the early 1990s, the brand was "the largest lingerie retailer in the United States, with 350 stores nationwide and more than $1 billion in sales.

In 1995, the first Victoria's Secret fashion show was held in New York City, and with it the beginning of the V.I.P. Angel era, which would become the backbone of the company's image for the next 23 years.

In 1996, Fantasy Bra was born, diamond lingerie was introduced and the tradition of wearing million dollar bras began.

The company flourished as it gradually entered the perfume and cosmetics market. By 2013, the company had a market share of about one-third of its category.

As the #MeToo movement began in 2016, consumers turned to comfort, movement, and female empowerment. Sexual harassment by company executives, "misogynistic culture" and disrespect for "transgender" scandals continued to fester, dealing the company a heavy blow. Victoria's Secret "sexy" concept has fallen behind, and the company is in decline, with sales declining year after year.

In November 2019, the annual Victoria's Secret fashion show was officially canceled due to a significant drop in ratings. The same year, the global epidemic spread, resulting in the closure of a large number of offline stores. Also the same year, the company's annual sales fell to $7.5 billion from $8.1 billion in 2018. 2020 sales fell even more, to $5.4 billion.

In 2021, Victoria's Secret introduced a new plan that showed the company was not only focused on physical beauty, but also aimed to "be the world's leading advocate for women". Customers are also shifting to embrace women of all different backgrounds and ethnicities, and to showcase women of all different body types.

TANGIBLE & INTANGIBLE

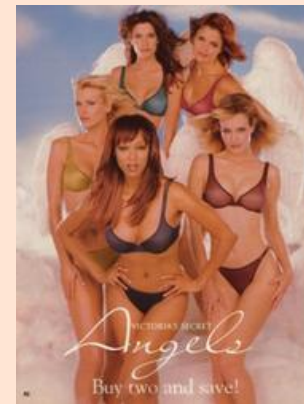

- The Naming of Victoria's Secret:

The company named its brand after Victorian England, hoping to evoke the sophistication of the period. In 2013, Slate's Naomi Barr summed up his vision: "Raymond imagined a Victorian boudoir filled with dark woods, oriental rugs and silk curtains. He chose the name 'Victoria' to evoke the propriety and decency associated with the Victorian era; sophisticated on the outside, the 'secrets' of Victoria lie beneath." (Mary Hanbury, 2023)

- The Logo meaning of Victoria's Secret:

Font: The logo introduced in 1977 looked like a retro style logo based on many small details, ornate elements and vintage elements. But the logo launched in the mid-1980s was a modern and functional minimalist logo, which became simple, clear and readable.

The graphic: the "V" and "S" - the abbreviation of the fashion brand name - are visible in the interweaving of letters. (Logos-world, 2023)

- Victoria's Secret fashion show:

The Victoria's Secret Fashion Show is an annual promotion created by the company that showcases elaborate fancy dress lingerie through Victoria's Secret Angel models, featuring the wearing of wings, music by famous entertainers, and an ever-changing themed set design to showcase a woman's paradise of extreme fantasy.

In later years, however, the extravaganza featured only tall, slim, traditionally beautiful models, which was so out of touch with today's consumers that it was derided by Newsweek as "a combination of feminine strutting confidence and male voyeurism." (Wikipedia, 2023)

WHY THE BRAND WENT INTO DECLINE

ANALYSIS OF BRAND DECLINE

No longer suitable for the target market, not keeping pace with consumers and out of touch

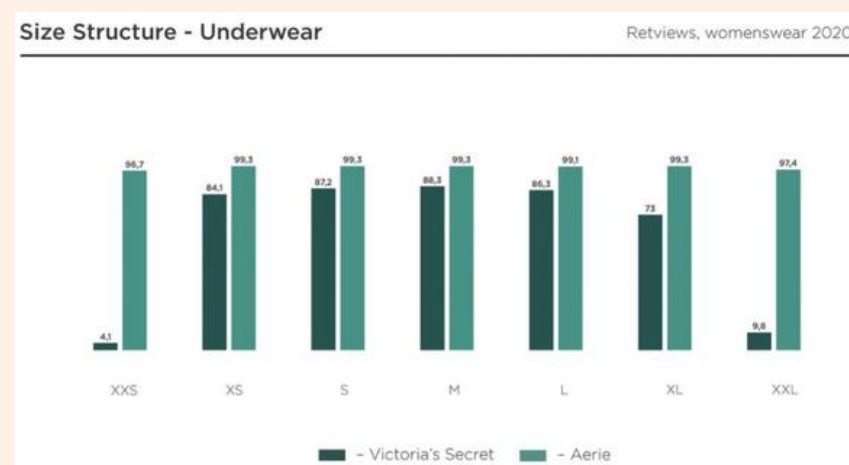

With a consumer focus on Gen Z and Millennials, a segment of consumers who have largely turned to online shopping and prefer comfortable, minimalist lingerie, Victoria's Secret has not kept up with the change in consumer habits.

Brand personality

In the wake of the #MeToo movement and the rise of female power, people are no longer paying for "sexy" and are instead wearing comfortable, casual, minimalist clothes, and the brand's philosophy is out of touch with consumers. (Passport, 2019)

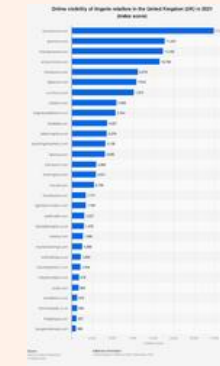

Competitors

Size range is not full enough: Compared to Aerie, which has the same number of models in various sizes, from XXS to XXL, Victoria's Secret has a significantly smaller size range than its competitors, with only 4.1% of lingerie raising XXS sizes, and 9.5% of lingerie offering XXL sizes. (Marion Deslandes, 2021)

Victoria's Secret size comparison with Aerie (Marion Deslandes, 2021)

Online competitors strike: As shown, for example, Bouxavenue, Pourmoi and other online retailers have greater online visibility than Victoria's Secret.

Online visibility of lingerie retailers in the United Kingdom (UK) in 2021 (Statista, 2021)

Some retailers have better value for money: for example, M&S, Primark, HM and other such large retailers, their lingerie style update quickly, low prices, more cost-effective.

Management scandals

In 2018, Ed Razek, chief marketing officer of L Brands (which owns VS), argued in an interview that transgender models should not be featured in fashion shows. (Alyssa Grabinski, 2022) The scandal festered under the #MeToo movement at the time, and the brand's reputation was instantly damaged by consumers' perceptions that the brand was not inclusive and diverse.

In February 2020, Victoria's Secret executives were exposed for bullying and harassment of models, and on February 1, 2020, the New York Times published an article about Victoria's Secret's "misogynistic culture" that included photos of sexual misconduct by executive Ed Razek, a scandal that continued to fester. The brand's reputation was in shambles. (Wikipedia, 2023)

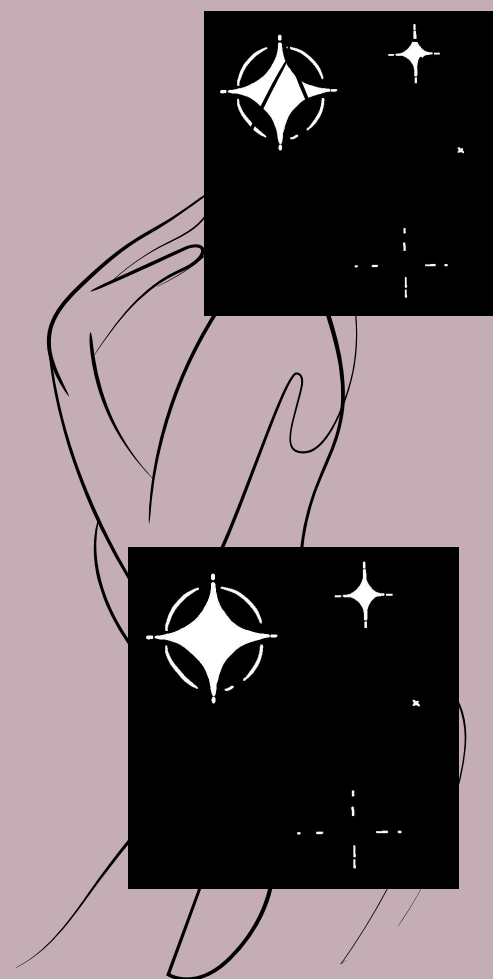

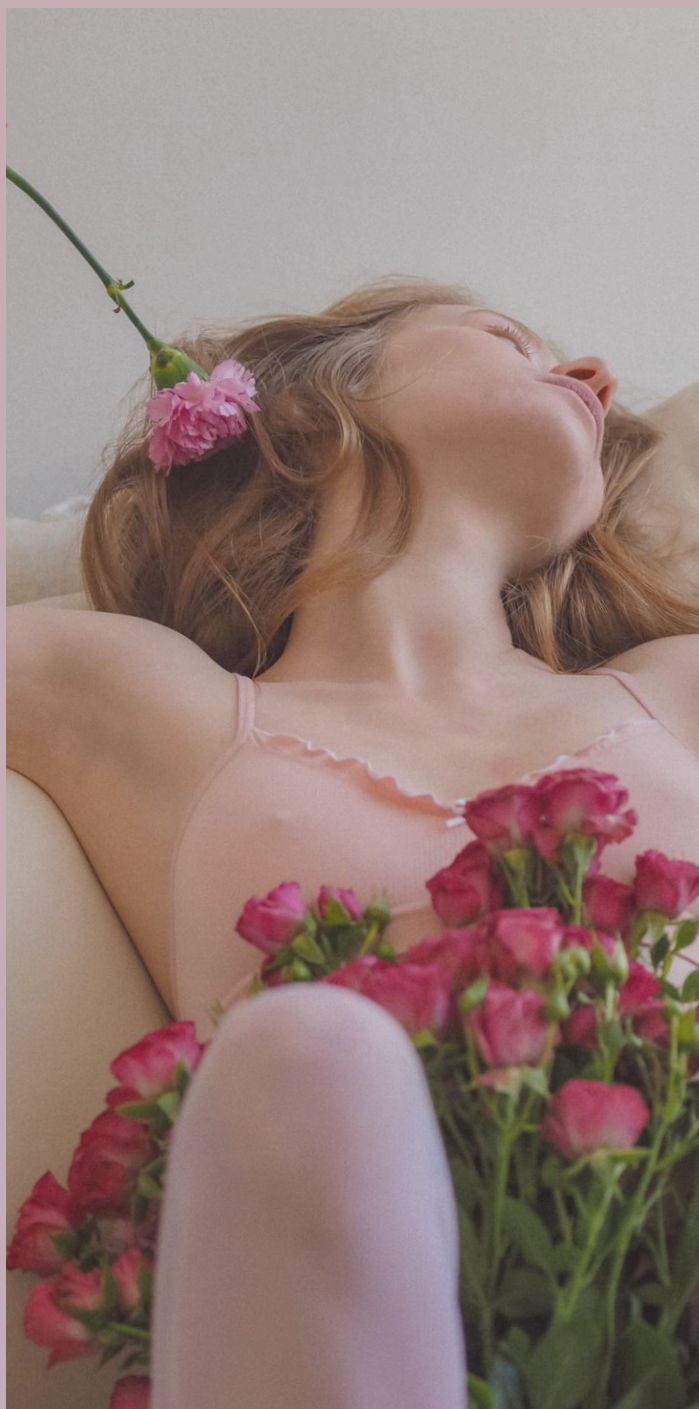

Fashion show cancellation

In November 2019, Victoria's Secret had no choice but to cancel the annual Victoria's Secret Fashion Show as the ratings for the fashion show were not what they were, plummeting to 3.7 million. (Alyssa Grabinski, 2022) And this was a huge blow to Victoria's Secret, which only has angel models and relies only on the fashion show for marketing and promotion and no spokespeople.

A large number of offline stores closed in bankruptcy

In the wake of the global epidemic, a large number of the brand's offline stores went bankrupt and closed. This is a huge blow to Victoria's Secret, which relies mainly on offline channel sales.

Part2

SWOT ANALYSIS

MACRO ENVIRONMENT TRENDS AND CONNECTIONS

Strength

A wide range of products are available: lingerie, nightwear, body lotions, perfumes, etc. The products are designed with new styles and diverse themes.

Marketing and advertising: the brand is highly visible through brand placement in magazines, advertisements and films, as well as online social media marketing.

Fashion shows: Fashion shows are a major marketing tool for the brand, with a high level of attention and increased awareness for the brand.

Victoria's Angels endorsing the brand: The brand develops its own Victoria's Angels as brand endorsers, and these models connect consumers with the brand.

In-store experience: Victoria's Secret offline shops are numerous and are decorated in pink for a comfortable in-store environment.

Weakness

The brand concept has not kept up with the times: it cannot follow up on the idea of female power and equality after the rise of Generation Z and millennial consumers.

Single-minded marketing: relies solely on fashion shows, uses only its own angel models and does not promote itself enough on social media.

Failure to meet customer needs: smaller range of sizes in lingerie, no diverse body models to meet the needs of all women.

Lower value for money: higher prices and a product that is more ornamental than practical and comfortable.

Opportunities

Opportunities in emerging markets: brands are expected to grow with rising consumer income levels, the rise of female power and the gradual opening up of sexuality.

Increased digital marketing: brands can increase their exposure on social media by leveraging endorsements from well-known women of different fields, ages and ethnicities.

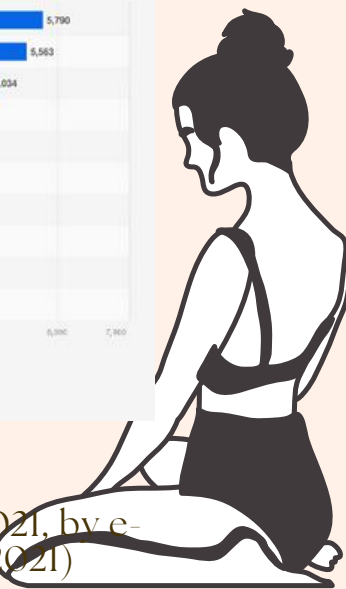

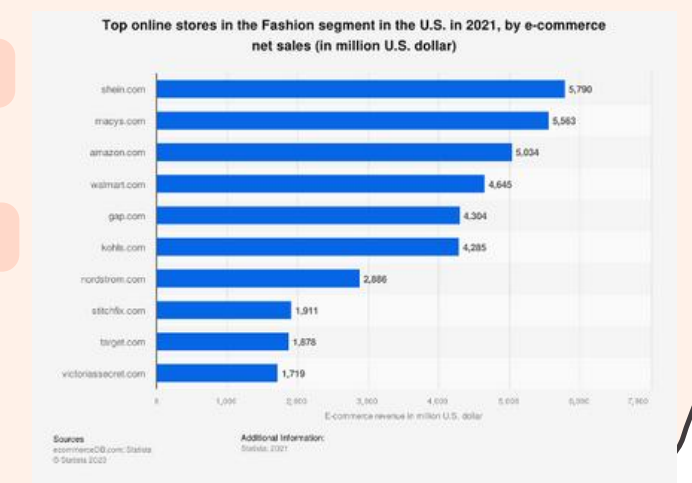

Opportunities for online sales: brands can increase their online sales channels.

Follow up on product development and refinement: brands can design more comfortable, minimalist products and widen the range of sizes so that all women can wear them.

Threats

Online market: while consumers are mostly turning to online platforms, brands are dominated by brick-and-mortar shops.

Fierce competition: the rise of emerging lingerie brands with high levels of comfort and practicality. The rise of online shopping and fierce competition. Some large offline retailers selling good value for money.

SEXY

Just like the Victoria's Secret of old, it's about constantly showing off your body, gathering your breasts together and turning them into something sexy.

PLUS SIZE WOMEN

Living with low self-esteem amidst the strange stares of others, unable to wear popular clothes, afraid to show off their obesity, even sucking in their stomachs and trying to turn themselves into perfect figures.

* AIDCA MODEL *

Attention:

The ad begins with the questions "What should women be like?", "Is it sexy?" and "Is it perfect body? ", which is accompanied by intense music to introduce the theme of the video, which captures people's attention.

At the emotional climax in the middle of the ad, the viewer's ears are captured by the collection of voices that are unhappy with the tag, with the words "Remove the tag!"

At the end of the campaign, the Victoria's Secret name and slogan are used to end the campaign, reinforcing the brand's memory.

Interest:

In the middle of the ad, a transgender man needs to become stronger to face the gossip. A woman needs to gather her breasts together and become sexy. A woman who is obese lives with low self-esteem and needs to suck in her stomach to live. Through the three back stories, it resonates emotionally with the audience.

Desire:

In the middle of the ad, it expresses that Victoria's Secret wants women to be confident and to be true to themselves, no matter what size, colour, personality, race or creed, building up the image of women expressed by the brand.

The second half of the ad expresses different images of female beauty through an ensemble of different women speaking out for collective women, paired with GBM, which speaks for women.

Conviction:

At the end of the campaign, a connection is made with the consumer through the Victoria's Secret name as well as the campaign slogan.

Action:

Through the slogan #Undefined, consumers are made aware that anyone can wear the brand's underwear, creating a connection with the word on social media and connecting consumers to Victoria's Secret's social media, website, etc. to reach more people.
